The manager is ultimately responsible. The Official Scorekeeper will also notify the manager when a player has reached his pitch count. It is also highly recommended that a coach or parent keep count of a player's pitches as well. It is required that each manager after the game verify, by initialing the official score book that they have the same pitch counts that the Official Scorekeeper has. If there is a conflict you can discuss it with the Official Scorekeeper and if he/she agrees then the pitch counts can be adjusted accordingly, however, the Official Scorekeeper has the ultimate decision. Once the official score keeper has signed off the book, records become official and mandatory rest periods will be observed for the pitchers based on the official score keeper's records.

- f) All these rules pertain even if a make up or playoff game causes a team to play more games in one calendar week.
- g) It is the responsibility of each manager to ensure the pitching rules are followed. We want to ensure the pitcher's health is not at risk. The Vice President is also responsible to ensure compliance. If a pitcher is discovered to have violated the days rest in an outing, the manager will be reprimanded at the discretion of the Board.
- h) During a pitching change (middle of the inning) there will be no balls thrown around the infield.
