

HYR 2023 Baseball Team Theme

Outdoor Activity

Since 2017, HYR team names have been an attempt to be fun, sometimes goofy, sometimes educational, and hopefully not boring. We also try extremely hard not to have team names that are the same as a professional or college team (not original). We have not repeated a team name in over 6 years. The team themes might range from insects to trees to herbs and spices to Musicians and composers. So, we often end up with matches between the “Screaming Zucchini” and the “Justlin’ Jalapenos”, “Nutmeg” vs. “Peppercorns”, or “Vivaldi” vs. “Lizzo”. We hope you enjoy that part of the HYR Experience.

Any time the team theme involves people with faces or silhouettes, we focus on as much gender and ethnic diversity and representation as possible. The non-sport-specific HYR logo in the lower left hopefully demonstrates that. HYR families represent a variety of cultures, and if we are putting people on the shirts, we feel it is important that players see themselves represented in those faces of either their team shirt or that of their opponents.

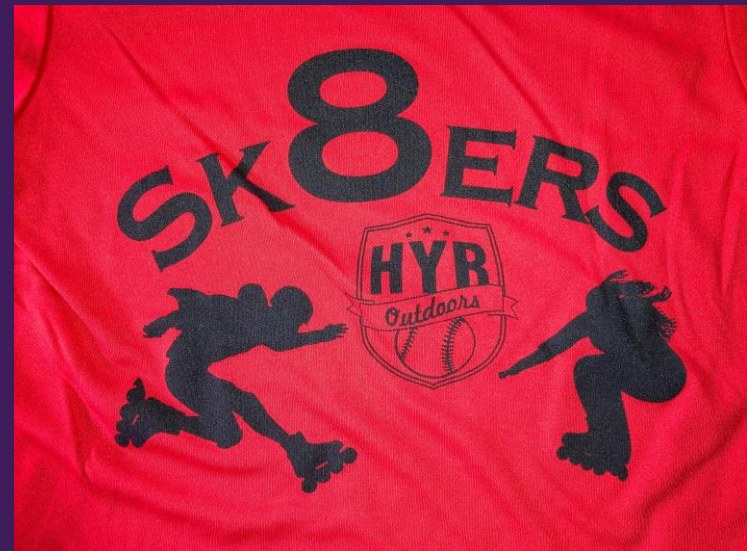

Any time we have a theme that applies to an entire season, we make a specific logo with the theme name in the banner in the center and derivations. This season, the word “Outdoors” is in the banner, and most of the designs feature the “Bloated” logo.

Outdoor activity is such a crucial part of a healthy lifestyle for physical and mental health. Although the sports we offer are one way to enjoy the outdoors, there are so many other ways. I regularly hike, camp, kayak, and hopefully the activities on the shirts represent things you like to do or may someday try. Responding to a couple questions/comments: Yes, Gaga is a real thing (look it up). Are Spelunkers or Snorkelers technically outdoors if they are underground or underwater? You can muse that question all you want, but it is best done when you are outdoors. Scroll down to see this year’s shirts. - Patrick

Below are two tee-ball shirts that were printed but not needed.
They may show up in a future season.
