ARTICLE V - LEAGUE DIVISIONS

34. - c. Minor - a league age 8 must have a coach(es) recommendation or have passing scores at the league evaluations. A league age 12 must have an existing safety concern reviewed by the league player agent and approved by the League President (D12 approval in a spring season).
- d. Major - a league age 9, in a fall season must have played at least 1 season in the Minor Division or similar. A league age 10 - 12, in a fall season, is recommended if skill set exists, to play in the Major Division to be better prepared for the possibility of being drafted in the upcoming Spring seasons Major Division Draft. In a spring season a player must be drafted to make a Major Division roster. A drafted player is expected to remain, for the remainder of their playing seasons, with the drafted team.
 - i. NOTE: All league age 9 - 12, in a spring season, must remain Major Division draft eligible or the player will lose All-Star eligibility for the upcoming season.
- e. Intermediate - a league age 11 or 12 must be dual enrolled in both the Major & Intermediate Division. A league age 13, in a fall season may register for only the Intermediate Division (WPLL highly recommends dual enrollment for capable players); however, in the spring all league age 13 players must remain eligible for the Junior Division Draft. Pending an available head coach, league age 13 players not drafted to a Junior Division roster will be placed on an Intermediate Division roster together. Dual enrolled players may be added to this roster, if needed.
 - i. NOTE: All players who are league age 13, in a spring season, must remain Junior Division draft eligible or the player will lose All-Star eligibility for the upcoming season.
- f. Junior - a league age 14 player, who does not present a safety risk at evaluations or tryouts will be placed or drafted to a Junior Division roster pending an available head coach. In a spring season a player must be drafted to make a Junior Division roster. A drafted player is expected to remain, for the remainder of their playing seasons, with the drafted team.
- g. Senior - this division will follow the little league rule book.

ARTICLE VI - LEAGUE DIVISION RULES

- 35. WPLL's division rules are located on the league website ("Information", subsection "WPLL Division", then by selecting a division in the drop down menu). A change to any WPLL Division rules of play is at the sole discretion of the league player agent, with the approval of the League President.
- 36. Division rules are as follows: Tee Ball, Rookies, Minors, Majors, Intermediate, Junior, Senior.
 - a. WPLL division rules are a living/breathing document thus subject to change even during a season.
 - b. Division rules are provided and discussed, to which any volunteer has an opportunity to discuss a concern, at length each season at the manager meeting.

ARTICLE VII - LEAGUE REQUESTS (YOUNGER DIVISIONS) AND/OR TRADES (OLDER DIVISIONS)

- 37. A special request can be made by entering it in the special request box when registering. WPLL will communicate and/or attempt to accommodate special requests, within reason, when possible.

- a. Requests made after players have been contacted not likely to be accommodated.
- 38. A player drafted in a division, who is requesting to change teams (trade request) must express the request in writing no less than 48 hours prior to a draft. This can be in the special request box of registration or by submitting in writing via email to the League President and/or League Player Agent.
 - a. If the request is approved, the player is available to all other teams within the division, via trade.
 - b. Only one time in a player's eligibility, per division, can a trade request be approved.
 - c. If necessary the player, to ensure all coaches in the division are familiar with the players abilities, may need to attend evaluations in order to be eligible to be traded. Refusing to participate in the evaluation, if requested, nullifies the trade request.
- 39. A player requesting a trade, which is approved by the League Player Agent and/or supported and approved by the League President, must be completed regardless of the specific team's willingness.
- 40. Per Little League rule a player must be traded for another player. Therefore the options at WPLL are:

OPTION 1.) A team within the division can (not required) offer a specific round (pick) in that season's draft (not a future season). The best offer is the offer that must be accepted, not the preferred destination. At the point of the draft the team who has made the trade will notify their trade partner who the other team would be willing to trade said player for in that spot.

OPTION 2.) If more than one team has a player requesting a trade the two players can be swapped for one another negating the best offered round requirement.

ARTICLE VIII - LEAGUE DRAFT PROCESS & GENERAL DRAFT INFORMATION

- 41. WPLL selects the "First Option - Plan A" of Little League with the below referenced modifications:
 - a. There will be no draft in any division with less than 3 teams.
 - b. A team(s) drafting 8 players or more in one draft shall receive a compensation pick between rounds two (2) and three (3), to improve competitive balance, in the original draft order.
 - c. Following the completion of the 3rd round the draft order will snake (reversing the draft order each round) thereafter beginning in the 4th round.
 - i. Snaking continues until the draft is complete (all teams reach the set number of players).
 - ii. NOTE: Major Division only a supplemental round(s) of league age 12-year old players only being drafted will follow the completion of the 1st round. The number of supplemental rounds is set by the League President, unless assigned otherwise, in accordance with the number of teams in the division and the number of league age 12's in the current draft to ensure all league age 12's will be drafted by the end of the draft.
 - iii. NOTE: A Major Division team is not to have more than 9 league age 12's on their roster.
 - d. Brother/Sister/Family "option" shall be respected at WPLL, within reason. It is considered reasonable so long as prior to the draft each team announces the round they project their team would potentially draft the sibling who is projected to go second. The highest round announced by another team is then set to be the round the "option" player must be drafted by the team who drafted the first of the sibling/family option. If not selected in that round the "option" player is then eligible to be drafted by any team in the following rounds or be subject to not being drafted and placed on a Minor Division roster.

- e. Sons/Daughters/Family of head coaches are protected until the 5th round. If not selected in the 5th round then said player is eligible to be drafted by any team in the following rounds.
 - f. Sons/Daughters/Family of returning assistant coaches shall follow the same process as the Brother/Sister/Family option WPLL plan (Article 8.40.E).
42. A coaches pick has been leveraged for many seasons at WPLL, but it is not a requirement/expectation.
- a. A coaches pick is after all tryouts are complete each team can select one player, "coaches pick" in the upcoming draft. If each team has selected a different player to be protected, an agreed upon round (the earliest round must be the round selected), becomes the coaches agreement but in no way is it binding as the draft may dictate otherwise.

 - i. NOTE: Fall seasons teams are responsible to umpire the league set expectation number of games. If they fail to umpire their requirement, the team will be responsible for supplying an umpire for their games. During a spring season teams are responsible to umpire the league set expectation number of games. If they fail to meet their obligation no manager or coach from that roster can be considered to be an All-Star manager, coach, or team rep.  - i. NOTE: If two teams or less are in a division the selection of players for that age group shall
